made and the silks include pretty foulards, geeses, messalines, wool challies, etc.

Many of them are daintily trimmed with yokes and cuffs. The assortment of styles and styles is especially good, but an excellent selection is very important.

The sale of dresses and suits which is announced here for Monday is unquestionably the most sensational event of its kind this season

Four weeks ago a similar statement was made by us—and with the comment that it would never be repeated. The statement was sincere; we did not foresee the possibility of being so fortunately placed for a second time.

Concerned is the entire remaining stock of one of the foremost Manhattan dressmakers. He was anxious to wind up his season's business, and the opportunity to offer our customers a chance to choose from such a splendid stock of silk and lingerie dresses and suits, was too good to let go by.
The dresses are here and Monday they may be purchased at prices

Averaging Less Than the Cost of Making of the Garment
